4 KEY CHANGES

The 1978 Order contains four important changes from the previous regulations:

Particular pricing - Where a special or reduced price is offered for "complete gasoline sales," from November 30, this will be possible only if the advertised rate of the higher rate for a part gallon is also proportionately displayed (in multiple display), the advertisement must be subjected to the review of local 15000 high.

The discount non-usable value - Where a discount is offered from the full price, the discount must be a discount of at least 10% of the full price. The discount must be a discount of at least 10% of the full price. The discount must be a discount of at least 10% of the full price.

Advertising and displays - The pricing Order contains provisions that displays of a price, whether on the pump or the roadside, must be at least half the height, and must be the full height, of whole numbers. The size of prices displayed has not been put to rest. However, when keeping to the correct height, have used symbols or outline figures or an illustration, a different, distinct background. Hence the new Order requires that the style of characters, as boldness, colour and background vehicle must be the same for regular and discounts to full whole numbers, while the full height requirements for discounts and the full height requirements for fraction change.

Industry labeling - Also in the interests of consistency, the Order requires all other vehicles keeping on roadside displays, whether of gasoline, oil or other products, like prices, to be in black or dark blue on a light background. All new BP material will be produced in accordance with the requirements. Although the new Order does not come into force until November 30, several provisions have been made to permit changes to the new standards between now and then. The new requirements may not be used before November 30, but if they are not, those of the 1977 Order must be used. BP has recommended that the advertising period should be used to secure the transition and to ensure that the November 30 deadline is not a cause of difficulty.

SINGLE PRICING NOW THE RECOMMENDED WAY

In the light of the new requirements, it is the recommendation of BP that single pricing must be adopted and all future pricing material produced by BP Ltd will support the single pricing code as illustrated here.
